You're Invited To
2013 International Unity Day

It's That Time Again

[See www.iup.edu/international and click on

2013 International Unity Day link.]

WHAT:

For those who are new to IUP, International Unity Day is a day of cultural celebration. Students from each country can work together to present an exhibit about their country (food, clothing, photos, articles, etc.). The purpose behind International Unity Day is to make our university and the general community aware of the diversity of cultures at IUP. This is done largely through exhibits, lectures, music, dance, food, and art.

WHO:

All international students, scholars, faculty and staff!

Please note: PTW students are required to participate in some way to receive 10 hours. If you are unable to help, please contact CultureLinks at culture-links@iup.edu.

WHEN:

Saturday, April 6 from 12:00 p.m.-3:00 p.m.

(Participants 11:00 a.m.-3:30 p.m.)

WHERE: The HUB

TO PARTICIPATE:

The application is on the reverse side of this invitation. Applications will also be available in the OIE for all interested participants. Our office will give each country table $100 credit at Martins. Students may share a table with another country if desired.

We are also looking for students to help with entertainment, the fashion show, children's activities, and setting up and cleaning up.

INFORMATION SESSIONS:

If you have any questions, come to one on either Tuesday, March 11, or Wednesday, March 12 at 2 p.m. in the OIE Conference Room, B39 Delaney Hall.
