Part II. Description of Curricular Change

1. ENGL 437 Major Global Authors 3c-01-3cr
Prerequisites: ENGL 121 or 122; 202; and either 209 or 396

Examines major works in English and/or English translation of a single major global author not included in the British or American literary traditions. Situates the author within major transnational literary and historical developments. Major author to be studied in particular semester to be announced in advance.

2. old description
ENGL 399 Major Global Authors 3c-01-3cr
Prerequisites: ENGL 202

Examines major works in English of a single major global author not included in the British or American literary traditions. Situates the author within major transnational literary and historical developments. Major author to be studied in particular semester to be announced in advance.

Number change
 from 399
 to 437

Prerequisite changes from ENGL 202
 to ENGL 121 or 122, and 202; one of the following: ENGL 226 or 396

3. The number change will bring the course in line with the other 400-level courses on major authors. The changes in prerequisites include a course in analyzing literature (ENGL 121 or 122) and a course familiarizing students with global literature (ENGL 226 or 396). There is no change in the course description, except for adding “and/or English translation” for clarity.

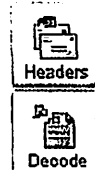

Part III. Letters of Support or Acknowledgement

The Asian Studies and the Latin American Studies Programs will be notified of these changes.

Dear Caleb,

I am writing to you in my capacity as a member of the English BA Majors Committee. The English BA Curriculum is currently going through a revision, and three of the courses listed in the Latin American Studies program -- ENGL344 Ethnic-American Literature, ENGL398 Global Genres, and ENGL399 Global Authors -- are being slightly revised. In order to ensure a transparent process, we are asking that affected programs review and endorse these changes. The paperwork outlining the revision of these courses, with all the relevant information, is attached to this email.

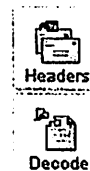

Thanks so much for your time.

Sincerely,

Susan Comfort
