Part II. Description of the Curriculum Change

1. An exact statement of what is to be deleted.

The course listing BIOL 321 Environmental Protection I is to be deleted.

2. Justification/Rationale

BIOL 321 Environmental Protection I is being revised and its revision includes a course prefix, number, and name change to ENVH 221 Environmental Health and Protection I. Therefore, BIOL 321 Environmental Protection I should be deleted to make this prefix and number available for a future new biology course.

3. Revision of BIOL 321 Environmental Protection I to ENVH 221 Environmental Health and Protection I is part of an Environmental Health Program Curriculum Revision Proposal; designed to update the Program and to make it suitable for accreditation by the National Environmental Health Science and Protection Accreditation Council. BIOL 321 is a currently a required course for Environmental Health majors, and a controlled elective for Environmental Geoscience majors. They will be able to take ENVH 221 in lieu of BIOL 321.

Part III. Letters of Support or Acknowledgement

The Department of Geoscience has submitted a letter of support for the Environmental Health Program Curriculum Revision Proposal including the change of BIOL 321 to ENVH 221.
