JN 449--Public Affairs Reporting
J. David Truby

Welcome to a tossed salad of reporting, investigation, paper chases, police work, computer search, libraries, telephones, ethics, writing, patience, ethics, scam, bluff, ethics, more patience. It's all mixed in a bowl called Public Affairs Reporting.

Mixed in with lectures, speakers, memories, war stories and a lot of lecture and discussion you will do some writing. How much and on what varies from group to group. This is an advanced class open only to majors who have had Journalistic Writing and News Reporting. Our purpose will be the study of putting together a complex story or series about issues or situations in the public sector.

Part II. 3. Justification/Rational for changes.

The existing system of numbering journalism courses does not adequately reflect the sequence in which students should take them nor the relative level of difficulty of the courses. For instance, the first journalism course our students should take, Basic Journalistic Skills, Jn 106, is not our lowest numbered course. And there are a number of 300 level courses which are actually advanced senior level courses. An example would be our management course, Jn 323, Management in Mass Communications. It requires field experience. It's unquestionably a senior level course.

For reasons no one can remember, the original numbering did not adequately represent the logic and sequence of our program. The changes proposed would accurately mirror a long-existing reality. There are no changes in course content.

The changes in prerequisites proposed will merely be consonant with the renumbering we propose.
