Current Catalog Description:

PHIL 450 Philosophy of Law  3c-01-3cr
An examination of the nature of law and its relationship to such questions as morality, obligation, judicial review, justice, rights, punishment, liberty. The course combines philosophical theory with consideration of selected court cases to develop a philosophical and legal understanding of law and its place in society.

Proposed Catalog Description:
An examination of central issues in the philosophy of law, including law and morality, the interpretation of law, and philosophical and legal issues concerning punishment, justice, rights, and liberty. The course combines philosophical theory with consideration of selected court cases to develop an understanding of law and its place in society.

Rationale: The basic elements of the proposed catalog description are the same as those in the current description. The changes are primarily stylistic.

1. PROPOSED COURSE SYLLABUS

I. Catalog Description

PHIL 450: Philosophy of Law  3c-01-3cr
Prerequisites: none

An examination of central issues in the philosophy of law, including law and morality, the interpretation of law, and philosophical and legal issues concerning punishment, justice, rights, and liberty. The course combines philosophical theory with consideration of selected court cases to develop an understanding of law and its place in society.

II. Course Outcomes (LS Elective and Global Citizenship Expected Undergraduate Student Learning Outcomes – EUSLO):

At the end of the course students will be able to:

Objective 1:
Describe core concepts and issues in philosophy of law.

   Expected Undergraduate Learning Outcome 1:
   Informed Learners

Rationale:
Writing assignments and examinations will require students to describe natural law theory, legal positivism, legal realism, theories of legal interpretation, as well as philosophical issues that arise in areas such as criminal law and constitutional law. This objective specifically meets the Informed Learners Outcome as a Global Citizenship elective given that sections of the course are devoted to the status of international law, human rights, terrorism, and torture.

Objective 2:
Describe important judicial decisions.

Expected Undergraduate Learning Outcomes 1 and 3:
Informed and Responsible Learners

Rationale:
Writing assignments and examinations will require students to describe landmark Supreme Court decisions (e.g., Marbury v. Madison, Roe v. Wade) and decisions that illustrate key issues of statutory and Constitutional interpretation (e.g., Church of the Holy Trinity v. United States, D.C. v. Heller). The objective specifically meets the Informed and Responsible Learners Outcomes as a Global Citizenship elective given that students will demonstrate knowledge of decisions on a range of issues concerning ethics and social justice (e.g., Grutter v. Bollinger, Goodridge v. Massachusetts Department of Health) as well as decisions with global implications (e.g., Hamdan v. Rumsfeld, Nuremberg Military Tribunals).

Objective 3:
Analyze and evaluate philosophical and legal arguments.

Expected Undergraduate Learning Outcome 2:
Empowered Learners

Rationale:
Writing assignments will require students to critically evaluate both philosophical arguments concerning the law and the legal reasoning in important judicial decisions. Students will be required to explain key objections to arguments as well as potential replies to the objections.

Objective 4:
Describe the interrelationships among law, ethics, and political theory.

Expected Undergraduate Learning Outcome 3:
Responsible Learners

Rationale:
Writing assignments will require students to explain the major approaches to ethical theory and their use in the justification of criminal punishment. Students will also be required to describe the connections between law and liberal democratic values such as liberty and equality, as well as philosophical issues concerning human rights and the morality of torture.

Summary Papers: Students must turn in a one-page paper each week that summarizes an argument from the assigned reading. These papers will focus on a question that is provided in class. The best ten papers will count towards 15% of the final grade.

Short Analysis Paper: The short analysis paper is a four-page writing assignment in which students must critically analyze and evaluate an argument or position. This paper is worth 20% of the final grade.

Longer Paper: Students will write an eight-page paper on a topic of their choosing. Students will be given a detailed handout with instructions and a list of suggested topics. This paper is worth 20% of the final grade.

Exams: Two exams—a mid-term and final exam—will consist of short answer and essay questions. Each exam is worth 20% of the final grade.

Participation: Active participation during class sessions will count for 5% of the final grade. Participation will be assessed in terms of attendance and student contributions to in-class discussions.

V. Example Grading Scale
90-100% A, 80-89% B, 70-79% C, 60-69% D, 59% or less F.

Sample Assignment for Liberal Studies Course:

Short Analysis Paper on the Scalia-Dworkin Debate

Write a four-page paper in which you discuss the Scalia-Dworkin debate on legal interpretation. As we’ve discussed in class, Scalia and Dworkin both endorse a form of originalism, but they disagree about exactly how originalism ought to be understood, especially with respect to Constitutional interpretation. You have three tasks in this paper. First, explain the kind of originalism—what Dworkin calls “semantic originalism”—that Scalia and Dworkin both accept, contrasting it with “strict textualism” and “expectation originalism”. Be sure to explain why Dworkin and Scalia claim that semantic originalism is superior to alternatives forms. Second, explain the disagreement between Scalia and Dworkin concerning what semantic originalism implies about Constitutional interpretation. Finally, explain whose position you think is stronger, and defend your view against one possible objection.

Assessment

A papers generally:
- Are well-written, with a minimum of typographical, grammatical, and spelling errors.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the view under discussion.
- Clearly articulate an argument for the view under discussion.
- Clearly articulate an objection to the view under discussion.

B papers generally:
- Are generally well-written, with some mistakes.
- Demonstrate a basic understanding of the view under discussion.
- Do not articulate a sufficiently clear argument for the view.
- Do not demonstrate sufficiently clear evaluation of the argument.

C papers generally:
- Are not clearly organized.
• Do not demonstrate a clear understanding of the issue under discussion.
• Do demonstrate at least a general understanding of the issue under discussion.

_D papers generally:_
• Are poorly written.
• Demonstrate minimal understanding of the issue under discussion.
• Demonstrate a lack of effort on the part of the student.

_F papers generally:_
• Demonstrate a complete lack of effort on the part of the student.
• Make use of material found online that is simply cut and pasted into the document.
• Fail to properly cite quoted material. (Serious failures will trigger an investigation into whether standards of academic honesty were violated).
2. Summary of Proposed Revisions
   a. The course description has been slightly revised.

   b. Revision of course outline and objectives.

3. Rationale for Proposed Revisions
   a. The basic elements of the proposed catalog description are the same as those in the current description. The changes are primarily stylistic.

   b. The course outline and objectives have been changed so that they are aligned with the LS Elective and Global Citizenship Expected Undergraduate Student Learning Outcomes.

4. The Old Syllabus of Record (see below)

Liberal Studies Course Approval General Information

1. This is not a multiple-section course. Faculty members teaching the course will rely on the syllabus of record and regular meetings to ensure similarity in course objectives, content, and evaluation methods. This is a practice we already have in place, to ensure a high degree of uniformity across faculty, while still giving faculty room to tailor the course as they see fit.

2. Assigned readings will include articles on topics concerning legal issues related to race and gender, including articles written by female philosophers, as well as judicial decisions and essays on topics such as abortion rights, affirmative action, and same-sex marriage. For instance, the syllabus above includes excerpts from Grutter v. Bollinger, Goodridge v. Massachusetts Department of Health, and Roe v. Wade.

3. The examples of current textbooks above are anthologies of primary source material, both classical and contemporary. Faculty who choose an authored textbook will also include primary source material.

4. This course is an advanced introduction to the philosophy of law, which is designed to be accessible to both majors and non-majors.
Checklist for Liberal Studies Electives Course Proposals

1. ___x___ Review the Criteria for a Liberal Studies Elective – note how the competencies are to be handled.

2. ___x___ Follow the 2012 Undergraduate Curriculum Handbook for new (p. 20-27) or revised courses (p. 15-19).

3. ___x___ Use the new Curriculum Proposal Cover Sheet (interactive PDF or word document - available at http://www.iup.edu/senate/uwucc/default.aspx).

4. ___x___ Course Outcomes and Assessment (Section II, The Syllabus of Record - p. 23 and 85 in UWUCC Handbook) map to the three required Liberal Studies Electives Expected Undergraduate Student Learning Outcomes (EUSLOs): Informed Learners (I), Empowered Learners (II), and Responsible (III) Learners.

5. ___x___ Course content – meets the required course content for a Liberal Studies Elective. While the course outline may not explicitly state the items in the required content, it needs to be clear that the content of the course attempts to address these required elements.

6. ___x___ Competencies - All Liberal Studies Electives must meet the EUSLOs and required course content from at least ONE of the following SIX competencies: Global Citizenship; Information Literacy; Oral Communication; Quantitative Reasoning; Scientific Literacy; and Technological Literacy. Note: a course may meet more than one competency.

7. ___x___ Proposal includes the assignment instructions for one of the major course assignments and a grading rubric or grading criteria for that assignment (p. 33 UWUCC Handbook).

8. ___x___ Proposal includes the answers to the four Liberal Studies questions (p. 91 UWUCC Handbook).

9. ___x___ Proposal meets the spirit of Liberal Studies (p. 30 UWUCC Handbook).

If this is a course revision (p. 18 UWUCC Handbook)

10. ___x___ Summary of the proposed revisions.

11. ___x___ Justification/rationale for the revision – be sure to include any departmental discussions of the overall offerings of their Liberal Studies Courses and why this course is included in those offerings.

12. ___x___ The old syllabus of record.

13. ___x___ Review Liberal Studies course approval checklist (p. 90 UWUCC Handbook).

I. CATALOGUE DESCRIPTION

PH 450   Philosophy of Law            3 credits
                      3 Lecture Hours

An examination of the nature of law and its relationship to such questions as morality, obligation, judicial review, justice, rights, punishment, liberty. The course combines philosophical theory with consideration of selected court cases to develop a philosophical and legal understanding of law and its place in society.

II. Course Objectives

1. To introduce students to the range of philosophical issues connected with law, and to consider some of the interrelationships between laws, ethics, and political theory.
2. To illustrate the impact of law in everyday life through such questions as paternalism, racial and gender equality.
3. To enable students to think critically about the nature of law, its related problems, and ethical, social, political, and legal issues.
4. To develop critical skills in reading philosophical and legal material related to law.
5. Where appropriate and feasible, to differentiate between western and non-western systems of law.

III. Course Outline*

LIBERAL STUDIES COURSE APPROVAL FORM

About this form: Use this form only if you wish to have a course included for Liberal Studies credit. The form is intended to assist you in developing your course to meet the university's Criteria for Liberal Studies, and to arrange your proposal in a standard order for consideration by the LSC and the UWUCC. If you have questions, contact the Liberal Studies Office, 353 Sutton Hall; telephone, 357-5715.

Do not use this form for technical, professional, or pre-professional courses or for remedial courses, none of which is eligible for Liberal Studies. Do not use this form for sections of the synthesis course or for writing-intensive sections; different forms will be available for those.

PART II. WHICH LIBERAL STUDIES GOALS WILL YOUR COURSE MEET? Check all that apply and attach an explanation.

All Liberal Studies courses must contribute to at least one of these goals; most will meet more than one. As you check them off, please indicate whether you consider them to be primary or secondary goals of the course. (For example, a history course might assume "historical consciousness" and "acquiring a body of knowledge" as its primary goals, but it might also enhance inquiry skills or literacy or library skills.) Keep in mind that no single course is expected to shoulder all by itself the responsibility for meeting these goals; our work is supported and enhanced by that of our colleagues teaching other courses.

A. Intellectual Skills and Modes of Thinking:

1. Inquiry, abstract logical thinking, critical analysis, synthesis, decision making, and other aspects of the critical process.

PART III. DOES YOUR COURSE MEET THE GENERAL CRITERIA FOR LIBERAL STUDIES? Please attach answers to these questions.

A. If this is a multiple-section, multiple-instructor course, there should be a basic equivalency (though not necessarily uniformity) among the sections in such things as objectives, content, assignments, and evaluation. Note: this should not be interpreted to mean that all professors must make the same assignments or teach the same way; departments are encouraged to develop their courses to allow the flexibility which contributes to imaginative, committed teaching and capitalizes on the strengths of individual faculty.

What are the strategies that your department will use to assure that basic equivalency exists? Examples might be the establishment of departmental guidelines, assignment of responsibility to a coordinating committee, exchange and discussion of individual instructor syllabi, periodic meetings among instructors, etc.

cf. explanation

B. Liberal Studies courses must include the perspectives and contributions of ethnic and racial minorities and of women wherever appropriate to the subject matter.
If your attached syllabus does not make explicit that the course meets this criterion, please append an explanation of how it will.

cf. explanation

C. Liberal Studies courses must require the reading and use by students of at least one, but preferably more, substantial works of fiction or nonfiction (as distinguished from textbooks, anthologies, workbooks, or manuals). Your attached syllabus must make explicit that the course meets this criterion.

[The only exception is for courses whose primary purpose is the development of higher level quantitative skills: such courses are encouraged to include such reading, but are not expected to do so at the expense of other course objectives. If you are exercising this exception, please justify here.]

cf. explanation

D. If this is an introductory course intended for a general student audience, it should be designed to reflect the reality that it may well be the only formal college instruction these students will have in that discipline, instead of being designed as the first course in a major sequence. That is, it should introduce the discipline to students rather than introduce students into the discipline. If this is such an introductory course, how is it different from what is provided for beginning majors?

cf. explanation
E. The Liberal Studies Criteria indicate six ways in which all courses should contribute to students' abilities. To which of the six will your course contribute? Check all that apply and attach an explanation.

X 1. Confront the major ethical issues which pertain to the subject matter; realize that although "suspended judgment" is a necessity of intellectual inquiry, one cannot live forever in suspension; and make ethical choices and take responsibility for them.

X 2. Define and analyze problems, frame questions, evaluate available solutions, and make choices

X 3. Communicate knowledge and exchange ideas by various forms of expression, in most cases writing and speaking.

X 4. Recognize creativity and engage in creative thinking.

X 5. Continue learning even after the completion of their formal education.

X 6. Recognize relationships between what is being studied and current issues, thoughts, institutions, and/or events.

PART IV. DOES YOUR COURSE MEET THE CRITERIA FOR THE CURRICULUM CATEGORY IN WHICH IT IS TO BE LISTED?

Each curriculum category has its own set of specific criteria in addition to those generally applicable. The LSC provides copies of these criteria arranged in a convenient, check-list format which you can mark off appropriately and include with your proposal. The attached syllabus should indicate how your course meets each criterion you check. If it does not do so explicitly, please attach an explanation.
CHECK LIST — LIBERAL STUDIES ELECTIVES

Knowledge Area Criteria which the course must meet:

X Treat concepts, themes, and events in sufficient depth to enable students to appreciate the complexity, history, and current implications of what is being studied; and not be merely cursory coverages of lists of topics.

X Suggest the major intellectual questions/problems which interest practitioners of a discipline and explore critically the important theories and principles presented by the discipline.

X Allow students to understand and apply the methods of inquiry and vocabulary commonly used in the discipline.

X Encourage students to use and enhance, wherever possible, the composition and mathematics skills built in the Skill Areas of Liberal Studies.

Liberal Studies Elective Criteria which the course must meet:

X Meet the "General Criteria Which Apply to All Liberal Studies Courses."

X Not be a technical, professional, or pre-professional course.

Explanation: Appropriate courses are to be characterized by learning in its broad, liberal sense rather than in the sense of technique or professional proficiency. For instance, assuming it met all the other criteria for Liberal Studies, a course in "Theater History" might be appropriate, while one in "The Craft of Set Construction" probably would not; or, a course in "Modern American Poetry" might be appropriate, while one in "New Techniques for Teaching Writing in the Secondary Schools" probably would not; or, a course on "Mass Media and American Society" might be appropriate, while one in "Television Production Skills" probably would not; or, a course in "Human Anatomy" might be appropriate, while one in "Strategies for Biological Field Work" probably would not; or, a course in "Beginning French" might be appropriate, while one in "Practical Methods for Professional Translators" probably would not.
PART II. Liberal Studies Goals:

A1. The study of law requires three skills: interpretive reading; reasoning; clear and precise writing. The student will be introduced into the second by means of selected court cases which illustrate the use of principles to reach reasonable, but debatable conclusions. The student is also shown that in law decisions must be made even in the hardest of cases, and that conclusions must be drawn using available principles and facts. The student will also discuss the competing theories of law and their effect on actual decision making. Finally, the themes of paternalism, rights, liberty, etc. involve a substantial level of critical analysis, synthesis, decision making.

A2. The second skill required for this course is the ability to read interpretively, and write clearly and precisely. Class discussions will require clarity of speech.

A4. Historical consciousness will be developed to the extent that theories functioning during different periods of time will be considered.

A6. Value questions are central to a discussion of law which must adjudicate among competing value claims, e.g., rights of parties; state and individual, privacy issues, etc. The student is shown how values play a role in both procedure and substantive legal matters. The role of value in contract, criminal, tort, or civil cases is also considered. A normative consideration of law is also found in the areas of the lawyer-client relationship, professionalism, and legal ethics.

B. Acquiring a Body of Knowledge or Understanding Essential to an Educated Person

Law, with philosophy, formed the essential education of the medieval student. Its role in a democratic society is no less significant. Law affects individuals in all aspects of their lives, and the study of law opens the student to a wide range of intersocial relationships: individuals with other individuals; individuals and groups; groups and other groups.

D1. The course will require use of the library for collateral reading in court cases, and for research in conjunction with a term project.
PART III. General Criteria

A. Basic equivalency of all sections of this course would be assured by the following process. All instructors who have taught this course during the previous academic year and summer or intend to teach the course the following academic year will meet at the conclusion of the spring semester. They will review this document, including the generic syllabus. They will exchange individual syllabi and then will discuss whether or not they are adequately meeting the specific goals and criteria approved for this course and outline herein. Any problems or conflicts would be brought to the attention of the entire department for resolution.

B. The course can easily accommodate this liberal studies requirement since recent legal changes have emphasized racial/ethnic/women questions. The theme of minorities in a majoritarian society has been constant in American law for the last 90 years, and questions of privacy, discrimination, equal rights have been dominant in the last 30 years.

C. Most readings are primary sources. Some are anthologies containing articles and/or selections by major philosophers or legal scholars. Required readings will include at least one booklength work by a major figure. Some court cases are monograph length and would fulfill the Liberal Studies criterion. Examples of such court cases are: Furman v. Georgia; Griswold v. Connecticut; Roe v. Wade. Examples of booklength readings are: Examples of possible book length readings are: Lon Fuller, The Morality of Law; Legal Fictions; H.L.A. Hart, The Concept of Law; Law, Liberty, and Morality; Philip Soper: A Theory of Law; John Hart Ely: Democracy and Distrust; Benjamin N. Cardozo: The Nature of the Judicial Process; The Growth of the Law; Roberto Mangabeira Unger: The Critical Legal Studies Movement.

D. We do not have introductory major courses as such. This course meets all the requirements of a Liberal Studies "mandated" course except that it is a little more intense and demands a little more reading and comprehension ability. It would, therefore, be an ideal course for the better students at IUP. If a student can fulfill a requirement at a higher level should (s)he be required to take a lower level course?

E2. cf. syllabus

E3. This would be accomplished through class discussion, oral reports, shared research.

E4. This would be accomplished through recognition of applied principles to specific court cases.

E5. The study of law provides the student with a background against which political and career decisions could be made.
E6. Cases studied and application to current events would accomplish this.

PART IV. Curriculum Category

1. This course fulfills the criteria selected. It does not consider either the mathematical or the aesthetic.

2. The course considers non-western traditions marginally and would be contingent on the instructor's acquaintance with non-western legal systems.
