LOAN DEFAULT: A GROWING CHALLENGE

When students fail to repay their loans according to the terms they agreed on, they are defaulting on their loans. The default rate is an important metric to watch. It's on the rise nationally, statewide, and here at IUP. As you can see below, the default rate for IUP students is lower than the national and state averages.

The challenge for students and educational institutions is ensuring that student debt is manageable. The Department of Education offers students entrance and exit counseling to assist them with managing repayment and understanding their rights and responsibilities as a borrower. Students must complete entrance counseling before loans are disbursed. IUP's Office of Financial Aid tracks this information and reminds students to complete entrance counseling to ensure the timely disbursement of funds.

Note that fiscal year 2011 is the last year for the two-year cohort default rate calculation. Moving forward, the calculation will be based on a three-year cohort default rate.
