

This agreement with Indiana University of Pennsylvania - Proposed College of Osteopathic Medicine -- is dedicated to educating and training the next generation of physicians who will be well prepared to meet the unique challenges of rural healthcare. This will also address future healthcare needs in rural and underserved communities.

The Medical Staff at CSSMCW is pleased to be part of IUP's - COM plan to offer medical students valuable clinical rotations and experiences in rural primary care. This collaborative effort with CSSMCW and other local healthcare providers will be crucial to the success of this new osteopathic medical school. In addition, these collaborative partnerships will also have a lasting effect and sustainable impact on improving healthcare outcomes in the region.

David Csikos, MD
Chief Medical Officer
Chan Soon-Shiong Medical Center at Windber