New Business

- In advance of the meeting/in anticipation of our guests from Admissions and Financial Aid, committee members reviewed Education Dept. Won’t Send Completed FAFSAs to Colleges Until ‘First Half of March’ \(chronicle.com\)

- Current developments regarding FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid)
 - Guest speakers: Stacy Hopkins and Paula Lucas
 - The delay of the FAFSA can increase barriers to higher education as students are waiting for support from aid to attend college.
 - Previous years students would receive their award offer letters as early as November. This year the earliest students could receive their award offer letter is mid-April.
 - Students typically must commit to universities by May 1 to guarantee a spot in their program. IUP is extending this date to May 15 to mitigate FAFSA related issues.
 - Reminding prospective students of the IUP scholarship offers that have been made to them to remind them of our affordability and a reminder to file the FAFSA.
 - All public colleges and universities that receive federal financial aid are in the same situation as IUP.
 - Returning students will not be impacted in the same way as incoming students because their award offer letter usually arrives in June.
 - Changes to the FAFSA
 - Changes to the formula used to determine the amount of federal aid being awarded.
 - Some changes were implemented in the 2021-2022 Academic Year, some were done in phases.
 - The largest change was to the 2024-2025 FAFSA.
 - Tax data can now be automatically imported from the IRS. If consent to do so is not given, students will be ineligible for federal funding.
 - The number of questions for the FAFSA has been reduced to 46 total questions.
 - Students can send their information to 20 schools instead of 10.
 - Expected Family Contribution (EFC) is replaced with Student Aid Index (SAI).
 - In the cases of divorced parents, the parent who provides the most financial support to the student will now be listed on the FAFSA rather than the parent who the student lived with the most.
 - PA State Grant consideration date is still May 1, 2024. The platform to apply for consideration is currently not available with plans of contacting students when it is ready.
 - Important to let IUP students know that the Financial Aid website is updated to include most currently information regarding the FAFSA delay.

- Paula Stossel and David Luke will be joining us for our March 26 meeting.

FOR ACTION:

Nomination for Honorary Degree

Ellen Ruddock has had a distinguished career of service to the local community, Indiana County, IUP, the military, nationally, and internationally. She has embodied the principles of female led entrepreneurship, family, and community strength and service.

Nominator: Jennifer Dunsmore, Advancement Division

Ellen (Sylves) Ruddock

Raised in the Pittsburgh area, Ruddock graduated from IUP (1966) and along with her husband, Rodney Ruddock, began teaching in the Penn Hills School District. Ellen left western Pennsylvania when Rod Ruddock, who had enlisted in the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) while attending IUP, accepted active-duty overseas military assignments for several years. During those assignments, Ellen served as an administrative assistant to the project manager at Utah-Martin-Day, an American Joint Venture in Bangkok, Thailand, and then for another year at the Joint U.S. Military Assistance Group at COMUSMACTHAI in southeast Asia.

Returning to the states and making a home in Indiana, where Rod rose through the ranks as a teacher and principal in the Indiana Area School District, Ellen brought her childhood dream of business ownership to reality in 1975, serving as the proprietor of Swing Set, a children's fashion store complementing an array of clothing, footwear, jewelry, and gift shops in the bustling heart of downtown Indiana. Unfortunately, a disastrous fire swept through the 700 block of Philadelphia Street in June 1980 and put Swing Set and several other specialty shops out of business.

After that set-back, her knowledge and friendships with other downtown business owners afforded Ruddock success in a new position as an advertising representative for WDAD-AM and WQMU-FM radio stations. In 1989, she left the radio station and started Career Dynamics, a consultancy that taught time management, workplace efficiency, business leadership, productivity, motivation, and other professional skills to workers and employers at companies throughout western Pennsylvania. So successful was the venture that a second office in Pittsburgh was established to meet the needs of a growing client list more easily in Allegheny, Westmoreland, Armstrong, and Indiana counties. Ruddock worked with former Pittsburgh Steelers J.T. Thomas and Larry Brown, who held the franchise for Applebee's Restaurants in most of western Pennsylvania. Giant Eagle, Chestnut Ridge Foam Company, Season-All Industries, and Clark Metal Company were also among her clients. While successful in business, she noted that, during this time, her work was accomplished while also raising a family. Raising her family was a success story due, she said, to following the same principles as she did in her professional life. In none of her positions, noted Ruddock, did she use numbers such as corporate profits, workforce levels or sales and revenue figures as only measures of success.

After 13 years, Ruddock sold Career Dynamics and took on consulting for Gateways to Opportunity, a $34 million capital campaign in support of the university by the Foundation for IUP. After closing out the successful fundraising effort, Ruddock was recruited by then College of Business Dean, Robert Camp, to direct the Center for Family Business, allowing her to fulfill another of her missions, aiding small, family-run companies to blossom to their full potential. Even when retired, Ruddock has frequently been called again to work for the community clients that she had in her Career Dynamics business.

Though busy with her career and family, Ruddock has always been available for community involvement and service. In addition to being a trailblazer as the first woman elected to Indiana Borough council (1991), Ruddock was the first woman appointed to the advisory board of the PNC Bank office in downtown Indiana. The Downtown Indiana Inc. merchants' promotion organization still relies on her guidance and encouragement, more than four decades after the doors at Swing Set swung open. She was an active board member of the Chevy Chase Community Center for years. She has remained active with Grace United Methodist Church in Indiana. The YMCA of Indiana County, U.S. Army Reserve Family Readiness Program, the City of Johnstown, and Borough of Indiana have counted on Ruddock's help - for strategic planning and goal setting, and especially in Wilkinsburg, leadership development.

Ellen is the past chair of the ATHENA International Board of Directors and is a board member emerita. She has traveled all over the world with the organization, helping to inspire women leaders for generations past, present, and future. She spearheaded the Emerging Women's Leadership Luncheon and was at the helm of creating the ATHENA high school club program.

As a trail-blazing female entrepreneur and civic leader, Ruddock has noted that both family and connectedness are important to her success. Into the early 2020's she still gathered every month with her colleagues from the Swing Set and maintained close ties with associates from each of her ventures. Ruddock noted that attaining business ownership, was helped by the experience of growing up in a family-owned business, her education at IUP, and the support of her husband – "...my biggest advocate, no matter what I've done." Even with these successes, she is aware that challenges to women in the workforce remain. She has noted that she persevered despite the gender-equity gap in the workplace far from being closed and more opportunities coming to male entrepreneurs in Indiana County.

Ruddock's service has been recognized by multiple organizations:

- She was the first recipient of the ATHENA Award in Pennsylvania which was brought to Indiana County in 1987 by the late Chuck Spadafora.
- For her work with military family groups, the Army awarded Ruddock the Civilian Medal of Distinction in 1997 and 2001.
- Pennsylvania Business Central named Ruddock to the 50 Best Women in Business list in 1999
- Ruddock has been included in the Women in Business publication by The Indiana Gazette.
- Leadership Management Inc. named Ruddock the franchisee of the year in 2000.
- She earned the Indiana County Civic Leader of the Year in 2000
- She was presented with the IUP President's Medal of Distinction in 2008.

Give the above noted service to the local, state, national and international community, the Academic Committee recommends conferral of an Honorary Degree on Ellen (Sylves) Ruddock.
