REPORTS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

President's Report (Senator Hodgson):

Many members of the university family, including members of this body, have worked hard on the preparation of the University Planning Council (UPC) report. I want to publicly thank those colleagues for their excellent accomplishment, and to inform the Senate that I have prepared a response to the UPC which I will be sharing with them at their next meeting. I feel that the UPC report will form an excellent framework for our future planning.

I am happy to report that contract negotiations between the system administration and our faculty union, APSCUF, continue, and that meetings are scheduled through the latter part of December. I am very encouraged by the willingness of both negotiating teams to continue to work together, and I hope for an early and successful conclusion to their work.

We have recently had two joyful occasions on the campus, the Family Weekend and the Academic Marketplace. Both of these endeavors were carefully orchestrated by the Division of Student Affairs, and I congratulate Dr. Luckey and her colleagues on their success. I also want to note the impressive participation of faculty and administrators from Academic Affairs in these events, and especially in the Academic Marketplace, and to thank those colleagues for their efforts on behalf of IUP and our students, present and future.

I have had the opportunity to attend several artistic performances this fall, including some by visiting professional artists like Charlie Daniels, Michael Bolton, Olivia Newton-John, and the cast of "Cats," as well as some by our own family, including Mary Logan Hastings, the IUP Chamber Singers, and the performance of "Zastrozzi!" (I will refrain from mentioning the name of the director of this play!) The quality of these performances has been uniformly outstanding, and I hope that my fellow Senators have had a chance to share in some of these events.

I will remind the Senate that the Middle States Accreditation process is under way; the self study design is, in my opinion, extremely well done, and I congratulate Dr. Kolb and his team.

The members of the Senate will have read about our special medallions that were presented to the members of the IUP Women's' Rugby team last weekend. The entire university family is in awe of their wonderful and heroic actions.

And finally, I must comment on the upcoming football game against the student athletes from our sister university, Slippery Rock. You will recall that there were some unfortunate and untoward activities at the end of last year's game, which was played there. President Smith and I have taken steps to ensure that there will be no recurrence of those actions this year, but I also appeal to members of this body to their best to make sure that this weekend's game is played and attended with the highest level of sportsmanship.

Provost's Report (Senator Staszkiewicz):

No report.

FOR ACTION: PASSED

1. Department of Sociology—New Course

SOC 269 Sociology of Deviance

3c-01-3cr

Prerequisite: SOC 151 or permission of instructor

Designed to provide students with an overview of the Sociological study of deviance. It will begin with examining the nature and meaning of deviance or how society creates deviance as social and legal constructions and identifies specific human behaviors as types or forms of deviance. Examined also are the major theories or multi-causal explanations of why such deviance occurs. The course further describes how society, especially its social institutions and agents, attempts to control or suppress such deviance. Social policy implications of such societal reactions are also considered.

Rationale: This course will be an elective course that will be incorporated into the department's substantive areas for Human Services, General Sociology and Applied Sociology tracks; specifically, those substantive areas are Interpersonal & Family Sociology, Medical Sociology, Juvenile Delinquency, and Gerontology under the Human Services and Applied Sociology tracks. For the General Sociology track, the proposed course will be incorporated under the Deviance and Social Problems and Individual and Society tracks. The proposed course is also designed to attract Sociology majors and minors as well as students in other related majors and minors, like Criminology and Human Development.

Prerequisite: PSYC 101

Intended for any major who will work with families and youth with disabilities. By understanding families as competent and resourceful systems, students will critically examine ways to collaborate

Rationale: This course specifically addresses disability issues from the family's perspective. As professionals in training, undergraduate and graduate students in the College of Education are expected to develop skills and competencies in working effectively with families of students or clients with disabilities. Currently, several courses in the college address some issues regarding parent-professional collaboration. No single course in the department, college, or across the university, however, deals specifically with family perspectives on disabilities and methods to enhance parent-professional relationships, particularly throughout a child's school years. The course will be an elective in the program.
