II. Descripton of the Curriculum Change

- 1. The Department of Communications Media is deleting CM 103, Basic Communications Research, a one credit course currently listed among major requirements.
- 2. Justification: The course is obsolete in its current form given the changes in Communications research methodology and research trends.
- 3. The deletion of this course will have no impact on students currently in the program. Any student who has previously taken this course will be permitted to include the course in their requirements. The deletion of the one credit from the program will be accommodated by other courses in Communications Media available for variable credit.
