Part II. Description of Curriculum Change

2. Justification/Rationale:

The department is requesting that the above listed courses be deleted, which if granted would assist the department with current course maintenance and future course development. The Criminology department has not offered any of these courses since 1988, with two exceptions. Those courses tagged with an asterisk were replaced with Senate approval in 2003 with other courses that currently remain active: CRIM 357 – Law, Social Control, and Society was changed to CRIM 255 – Law, Social Control, and Society. CRIM 390 – Women and Crime was changed to CRIM 450 – Women and Crime.

3. The deletion of these courses will not affect any existing courses or programs. Additionally, the deletion of these courses will not affect any students who are currently enrolled in the program; as noted, with the exception of CRIM 357 and CRIM 390, none of these courses have been offered since 1988.
