Feature: IUP Athletics Donor Profile: Ben Bruns

Thanks to your generosity, IUP Athletics continues to work towards our vision of being a consistent nationally competitive program and to deliver a premier student-athlete experience.

A significant part of support for our 400 student-athletes comes in the form of annual gifts from alumni, fans, and friends of the university and athletics.

We appreciate the support of all of our donors, including Ben Bruns, a 2021 IUP Athletics Hall of Fame inductee and former star on the baseball diamond, who is featured in our latest IUP Athletics Donor Profile.

Why do you choose to support IUP Athletics?

"I was fortunate enough to have a great experience at IUP and feel that, if able, a person should give back and afford the same opportunity to today's student athletes who otherwise might not have that chance."

Describe the feelings you have when you see the way student-athletes benefit because of your support.

"Living in Indiana, I get to see and interact with a lot of the student athletes, and get to see first hand the benefits of our support."

Talk about the importance of being an alum and former student-athlete of IUP, and using your time and resources to give back.

"IUP has always been an important part of my life, and athletics enabled me to come here. After graduating and spending a few years in the Navy I decided to move to Indiana and open a business. As a graduate of IUP and a businessman I see the importance of supporting both IUP and the community to create a great experience for both."

MCSLE wrapped up the second Summer Session with two incredible events. The first event was the final program of the Diversity Research Presentation Series, "The Role of Diversity & Inclusion in the Field of Safety Sciences." A panel of professionals shared the benefits and work that Safety Sciences contributes to a safe work environment for the IUP community. The panel also discussed how the field fosters diverse communication and opportunity for university communities to have "healthful" environments.

The second event was the MCSLE/Admissions Program, Part Two. This program gave IUP's Black and Brown students a chance to meet and ask questions of important student leadership and key IUP community members who will serve as critical human resources during their experience.

As it has done for the past several years, the Co-op Store will continue to offer IUP students financial aid as a form of payment even before their refund money arrives. All students whose MyIUP account shows a pending financial aid return will have the option to use that refund money to purchase textbooks and other classroom necessities. From art supplies to chef jackets, calculators and backpacks, students may use their funds for much more than textbooks. To take advantage of this program and never fall behind again to start the semester, students will select "Pay with Financial Aid" during the checkout process. Financial aid will be accepted until August 31. Questions or concerns can be directed to co-op-store@iup.edu.

To help accommodate the many different home wireless devices, such as Smart TVs, Streaming Media Devices, and Smart Speakers, the Office of Housing, Residential Living, and Dining, in coordination with IT Services, has expanded wireless density within the Suites and has setup a separate wireless network for these devices.

Students now have the ability to register their wireless home devices in the same way they did for their wired home devices in previous years on the wired network. The SSID for this network is NetRegOnly and is only active within the Suites. Laptops, tablets and smart phones should continue to connect to IUP because NetRegOnly can only access the internet, not IUP services, and is not as secure as the IUP wireless network.

From Monday, Aug. 16 to Saturday, Aug. 28, all IUP Group Fitness classes will be offered for free to all students. No sign-up or registration is required. Students can simply show up to any and all classes of their choice. All classes are held in the group fitness studios on the second floor of the HUB, directly above the Fitness Center. No classes will be held from Aug. 19-22.

Sitting on the panel of this year's largest Circle of Excellence Award category, the "Communications Pivot" award, judges took on over 160 entries from across the globe.

Aiello says, "I'm proud to serve with another outstanding group of judges from all over the world in judging the many entries CASE received for the Communications Pivot Award.
