Doing the right thing for the right reasons

Please take this back to your next faculty meeting.

If there was a consolidated advising center on campus for all undeclared students, how many faculty members in your department would be willing to volunteer a few hour a week throughout the semester (as service) to assist those students with advising, career orientation, and exploring different programs/majors?

Doing the right thing for the right	reasons
(Self Reflection)

Why is accurate Academic Advising important?

How do you perceive your role as an adviser?

What is the difference between prescription advising and developmental advising?

What are the benefits of developmental advising?

Doing the right thing for the right reasons

National Survey -48% to 72% of faculty disagreed with the following statements:

Advising is adequately rewarded.

Advising is considered when assessing merit raises.

The role of advising is considered in promotion and tenure evaluations and decisions.

HUIP Indiana University of Pennsylvanta

Doing the right thing for the right reasons

National Survey of students - Academic advising is the most used but lowest rated campus service

Faculty justification for poor advising:

lack of information, changing information (PHIL 221 - LSPR) inadequately rewarded

lack of appreciation increase in amount based on student load, diversity, first generation students the better I do, the more students who come to me for advising

MOJP Indiana University of Pennsylvania

Doing the right thing for the right reasons Failure to do the right thing (taking care of students) with developmental advising being a major component, leads to: Loss of students to other departments, other colleges, other universities, or out of academics. Loss of revenue for the department, the college, and the university; plausibly resulting in less hiring, retrenchment, loss of programs, and reduction in prestige, impacting future enrollment (downward spiral).

What is in it for me?

Administration:

- Financial gains and better resource allocations.
- Decline in advising complaints from students and
- Standardization throughout advising, all students receiving the same information.
- Improved intra and inter college relations.
- Enhanced recruitment and retention (Enrollment Management).

Some Advising Fallacies Administration and faculty question AWE for release as advising only becomes important during scheduling (October and March).	- Remaining current on a 270 page undergraduate curriculum catalog is not difficult, especially when the material changes during the semester as courses are approved or deleted and administrative rules are changed. TUP Indiana University of Pennsylvania

Some Advising Fallacies
Students have all the material to schedule, they need to figure it out for themselves (when you as the adviser, with a Ph.D., and insider information cannot remain abreast of the changes).
My office hours always will coincide with the time a student needs assistance, especially for emotional distress or troubling issues.
AUDP Indiana University of Pennss Ivania

Some Advising Fallacies
New faculty are well prepared for advising as they were shown the department checklist, the undergraduate catalog, and attended a class during new faculty orientation "which was more than I received".
My advisees will not seek out more competent advisers in the department because students never discuss their quality of advising with their peers and family;

and if they do go elsewhere, that is less work for me.
