March 14—3801 Lancaster: American Tragedy
Co-sponsored by the Center for Student Life

Six years ago, Dr. Kermit Gosnell was known in West Philadelphia as “the good doctor.” Today, he sits behind bars, convicted of three counts of first degree murder. How did this beloved doctor become one of the most hated and controversial figures of the decade? Through exclusive interviews with detectives, crime scene investigators, journalists, victims, and Dr. Gosnell himself, 3801 Lancaster: American Tragedy tells a story of violence, greed, and a cover-up that shocked the nation. After the film, its director and IUP alumnus, David Altrogge, will participate in a Q&A session.

March 28—Germany Then and Now: 25 Years After Reunification

2015 marked the 25th anniversary of Germany’s reunification. On October 3, 1990, after 40 years of separation, the German Democratic Republic and the Federal Republic of Germany reunited to form a single nation once again. After a short overview of major events in German cultural and political history between 1949 to 1990, a panel of speakers will share their personal perceptions of the divided Germany, reunification, and the economic and political powerhouse that Germany is today. Questions and comments from the audience are welcome.

Each of the world’s religions has some version of the “Golden Rule.” How do we begin to have conversations between our different religions, races, and cultural realities? What role does “white privilege” have in moving these discussions forward?

So you graduate in a few weeks, what are you doing next? Join a panel of IUP Alumni to discuss what to expect after graduation and how to stay engaged as an IUP alumnus/alumna! Interact with IUP Alumni from a variety of professions as they share their insight on how they landed their positions and provide tips for your future! You will leave being #IUPproud for sure!

Change lives, including your own, through community service. Our world faces immense challenges—5.6 million young Americans are neither in school nor working, 1 million students are dropping out of school each year, and 20% of children are living in poverty. You can help to solve these and many other problems and make a difference in overcrowded classrooms, understaffed health clinics, after-school programs, tutoring programs, and disaster relief efforts. Learn about local, national, and international service opportunities that empower you to pursue your passion for making a difference.
